THE FEVER SITUATION.

The State of Affairs in the Crescent City.

ARE MANY NEW CASES TODAY.

Abusing Situation at Edwards...

The Death Rate on the Increase.

THE STRICKEN CITY IN DIRE DISTRESS

The "Courier-Journal" sums up yesterday's yellow fever situation as follows: "The yellow fever continues to claim new victims in the South. Only five deaths were reported yesterday, but many new cases. Two of the deaths were at Mobile, two at New Orleans and one at Edwards. Six are hopelessly ill at Edwards, and almost the entire male population of the town is stricken. There have been 137 cases there to date, two more being reported yesterday. A New Orleans doctor writes seven new cases, and one at Mobile. Subsequent cases of fever are reported at Clinton, Miss. The physician quarantining has exerted a physician from New Orleans. The series of questions also includes a man most distressing effect upon every line of business at New Orleans, though in proportion to the population the disease is milder than at other places."

New Orleans, Sept. 29.—Seven new cases and two new deaths here today.

Edwards, Miss., Sept. 29.—The mortality rate among yellow fever patients is more than an alarming rate. Many new cases have been reported today.

New Orleans, Sept. 28.—The yellow fever situation here continues especially the same. A daily average of eighteen to twenty cases and one death has kept up. But while there is no sign of an epidemic it is still the slow progress of the disease is observed in the way of the freest and most popular, who are anxious to get away from time to time to the city. The record shows no case like that of many other days. It is shown a death through the neglect of neophyte, and of one who has come up to date having a full set of facts. The facts are never overstepped, at least half died through neglect or lack of attention.

Business is showing feeble signs of revival and the railroads are pushing forward energetic efforts to secure a modification of the quarantine regulations. Dr. Oglethorpe, up the road tomorrow in the convention of the Southern Pacific Company with a view of securing a modification of existing regulations will settle the way of another whether or not he is to situate for several weeks longer or whether it is probably to be resumed at once. The trip will also settle the question of whether or not New Orleans will close the air again. Give the wind another two points. In the meantime the Crescent City finds itself unable of shipping a pound of freight to the Lone Star state. The result of this, of course, is the drawing out of employment of hand cooks and thousands of people here. The railroads, the manufacturers, the big wholesale dealers have all suspended with the services of many of their employees until business again turns up.

It is probable that there have left town some 10,000 people, but the exodus will not be less than 25,000, and even those who were frightened a few nights ago have come to realize that there is no possible chance whatever for an epidemic. In September, 1878, there were between eighty and ninety people dying of yellow fever daily. Today we daily see scores of cases of the fever here in the beginning of the year.

A FAILURE

Is the Strike Method For Settling Labor Troubles.

Says the Resolutions Committee of the Chicago Labor Convention.

Chicago, Sept. 28.—When the report of the committee on resolutions of the National Labor convention was presented yesterday a big row began. A vote on the motion to endorse the principles of the strike in the case of the miners, it was voted to sustain the resolution.

A case against Zeno Williams, charged with pointing a pistol at a white man, a colored, was continued.

Lucinda Daniel, colored, will probably be tried for robbery tomorrow.

She lives on Broad street, and is very ill and feeble.

We favor the issue of a state bond under the government, and the establishment of government savings banks.

We will fully vote to have the resolutions accepted and passed at tomorrow's session when they come up to final passage a very time is anticipated.

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONIES.

The Funeral of the Late Mr. Wes Brian.

THE RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Burial Under the Auspices of Several Secret Orders, at Oak Grove.

PROMINENT VISITORS WHO ATTENDED.

The report is about 1,500 words long, and is addressed to the "Labor and Reform Organizations of America." In the introduction it refers to "the battle against monopoly" and speaks of the ballot as the safest means for reform. The report says, among other things:

We admit the failure of the strike method.

We favor a series of national conventions to which we invite the friends of labor in a movement looking toward political action.

We recognize the necessity of strikes, but the most effective strike is the ballot-box.

A NEW LAW

Governing Corporations—More Responsibility Put Upon the Directors.

Stockholders Made Liable to the Extent of Their Holdings—Special Charter Features Are Abrogated.

The new corporation law went into effect yesterday. All special privileges are abrogated and all corporations are on the same footing, so far as the changes are concerned.

When the new corporation statutes were passed, they contained this declaration:

"Section 573.—The provisions of all charters and articles of incorporation, whether granted by special act of the general assembly or obtained under any general incorporation law, shall be inconsistent with the provisions of this chapter concerning incorporated corporations, to the extent of any conflict and all powers, privileges and immunities of any corporation which could not be obtained under the provisions of this chapter shall stand repealed on September 13, 1897."

The following provisions making it a felony for any officer or agent of a corporation to attempt to do any such privilege or power as is given him, as a fine of $1,000 to $10,000 on conviction.

The following provision of the charter-making clause in the law of incorporation, section 547, is to be struck out: "And in case any corporation shall be liable to the debts of the corporation when they decline or pay dividends when the company is insolvent or make insolvent by paying dividends. They are also made liable to change that results from any false statement as to the condition of the company given out, or published with their assent. They are also made liable for any loss resulting from a violation by them of any provisions of the act and subject to such violation by a fine of from $200 to $1,000. Section 547 provides that stockholders shall be individually liable to the creditors of the corporation. If he is insolvent, to the extent of their holding of stocks of its own value.

Section 547 provides for a representation of a majority of stockholders in the voting by allowing each stockholder, if he chose to vote, so many votes for one director, as his holding of stock multiplied by the number of directors to be elected.

Louisville Times.

COTTON UP IN SMOKE.

Thousands of Barrels Destroyed by Fire at Mobile.

Mobile, Ala., Sept. 29.—The great cotton market suffered severe losses yesterday. Thousands of barrels of cotton were destroyed. The loss will be several hundred thousand dollars and the city's loss are almost incalculable.

Senate of a Shoemaker.

Louisville, Sept. 29.—Christopher Becker, an aged shoemaker, came to this morning by shooting himself with a pistol. No cause is given for his rash act.

CAESAR BETRAYED.

He Sold a Stove That Belonged to J. W. Givens.

Disorderly Dance: Fired—Other Cases Alredy in Police Court Today.

Cesar Rogers, colored, has found a home in Mobile. He sold a stove he had for a dollar a couple of days ago when he turned up his nose at the price. He was told to go away, so he got a bag of cotton and money by his purchases, it's good being lived off.

George Mansfield, colored, was fined $5 and costs for running a disorderly dance.

A case against Zeno Williams, charged with pointing a pistol at a white man, a colored, was continued.

Lucinda Daniel, colored, will probably be tried for robbery tomorrow.

She lives on Broad street, and is very ill and feeble.

Nice ash stove wood delivered promptly to any part of the city. Telephone 29. If E. E. Bell.

The resolutions adopted by the teachers are as follows:

At a meeting of the city teachers held the day in the Longfellow building, Superintendent George O. M. Brown was called to the chair and explained that the object of the meeting was to testify their appreciation of the worth, and to deplore their loss in the death of Mr. W. H. Brian.

After appropriate remarks by several teachers, the superintendent appointed a committee to draft resolutions of respect and condolence.

The following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, The death angel has again visited our city and taken from our midst Mr. W. H. Brian, secretary of the Paducah board of education, therefore be it

Resolved, That, by his death we have lost a true, unselfish friend, the school board a faithful officer and the city a just, upright and incorruptible citizen.

Resolved, That the wisdom and ability which he has for a quarter of a century shown in the public school interests of our city will be held in grateful remembrance. That the removal of such a man from a long and intimate relation with the public school interests of our city leaves a vacancy that will be hard to fill, and casts a shadow that will be deeply realized by the teachers of our city and all friends of education.

Resolved, That we deeply and sincerely mourn the death of our friend and tender to his sorrowing wife, daughter and relatives our warmest sympathy in their great bereavement.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be presented to the family of the deceased, the board of education, and the morning and afternoon papers for publication.

Sept. 28, 1897.

The funeral of the late Mr. Wes Brian took place this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the First Christian church, Rev. W. H. Pinkerton officiating.

The interment was at Oak Grove under the auspices of the K. of H., I. O. O. F., the Confederate Veterans and the U. O. G. C.

The members of the Board of Education and the public school teachers attended in a body, and among the many beautiful floral emblems was one from each and the teachers.

Resolved, That we deeply and sincerely mourn the death of our friend and tender to his sorrowing wife, daughter and relatives our warmest sympathy in their great bereavement.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be presented to the family of the deceased, the board of education, and the morning and afternoon papers for publication.

place hard to fill. The resolutions adopted are as follows:

Whereas, The laws of nature require that at some period of man's career all life shall cease;

Whereas, Mr. W. H. Brian, who departed this life September 27, has been a good and faithful member of the Paducah school board during the past twenty years; and

Whereas, He has taken a very active part in the education of the colored youth of our city ever since he came under the supervision of the Board of Education in 1882; therefore be it

Resolved, That we, the colored teachers of Paducah, mourn his loss.

Resolved, That in his death the schools have lost one of their most active workers, one of their most ardent friends; a man whose heart and soul were in the upbuilding of all humanity.

Resolved, That we further resolved, That we tender our sympathy to his family and friends in this, their hour of bereavement.

The great American fanning today is the ear fanning—a peculiarly regularly attendant of Republican administration.

Since Bryan was snubbed by the Democratic leaders of Ohio, he seems to have relaxed into a state of momentous oblivion.

It requires a good stretch of the imagination to charge up the toll-gate roads in this state to the Republican administration of state affairs. But that is what the Louisville "Dispatch" is doing.

Democrats are taking about three silver in 1890, and yet as little. It is being tubed in many a campaign. If there were no silver, it would not hold its own in 1897, it will cut but a small figure in 1900.

The free silver newspapers continue to pique him at the farmers for not imagining that good prices can come without the rehabilitation of silver. But the farmers will continue to pique him into the box against the placing in power of the free silver theorists, who will a locate anything to get into office.

Democrats are arguing that there is no such thing as an economic storming that the very fact that the rising of an inglorious line has not to do with atmospheric disturbance is foolishness. It may be so, but the people will be likely to give it a traditional belief, and then it is a matter of fact the equinoctial storm has seldom if ever failed to put in an appearance, even if a little late.

How have the mighty fallen! The people of Kentucky are unwilling to hear Bailey and Parker, a Republican and a Populist, discuss the political issues of the day. But Democracy is without a spokesman, a party with no leader. For the first time in its history the party that once numbered among its leaders the profoundest man in the old Blue Grass state, is now a lagged in the race. No longer does the Democratic party try to win by a still hunt. No longer does a name, well known and from a slight stock, carry the standard, but an unknown name leads the party, though the days in which Democracy in Kentucky is fallen,

The very Republican committee made a good start in electing Mr. Fifer, Kanawha or me for coronation in the fourth ward, Mr. L. F. Kohl having declined, owing to his business being too far from the center. Mr. Kanawha is a member of the present city council and has served well as a trustee and the city during several previous administrations. To him is due a large portion of credit for the present efficiency of the Paducah Department. He is a young man. His selection demonstrates that the Republican always ready to help his party. Mr. Wilcox was formerly in the saw mill business and resided on South Fourth between Clark and Adams street. He has sold his property and moved to a new residence on the hill above town. He knocked and went, finding about for a few moments, someone opened the door and there were four or five ladies sitting around a table eating a watermelon. They had it sliced and with many ready to eat on in case the police came unexpectedly, it seems.

When the officer knocked they all dropped the cards and fell to eating watermelon.

The officer thought the peculiar part was that they had just begun eating when the door was opened.

WOMEN BARRED

From Saloons in the Tenderloin District.

MARSHAL COLLINS ISSUES THE ORDERS

"One of the Finest"

Bacred, Too.

MARSHAL COLLINS has issued orders that all women of disrepute must quit out of the saloons on West Court street. For months and perhaps years past they have been allowed to go in the back doors and doors, but on account of a recent cutting sewage which resulted from a woman having too much liquor about—and on Sunday, too—the authorities decide to order them all to keep out of saloons on penalty of being warned for a violation.

Some of the women seemed to regard it as a joke, as the night police told them they had no orders to that effect, but yesterday Marshal Collins gave the night police similar orders, and the denizens no doubt realize now that it is a real reality.

Some of the saloon keepers are indignant, and one day sent Officer Crow to keep out of his saloon, as he was not wanted there. The officer will of course comply with the demand, but it is safe to say that the saloon in question will be closely watched than any of the rest.

IT DEPENDS

Entirely on Where the Patient is Found.

In Case it Would Have Been Yet Another Fever, It Must Be

Only Another.

D. R. H. DEAN wrote a few days ago to a friend, who had been ill at Vicksburg, Miss., concerning his son.

His son had fever, and exhibited every symptom of yellow fever, but the doctor said nothing about the case, knowing it was nothing but an attack of malaria, and there was no use in getting any unnecessary talk.

The boy is not well, but the doctor says he is certainly fit. In case he has been found in Cali instead of Paducah it would have been "yellow fever."

KATE FIELD'S TRIBUNE.

No stronger tribute has been paid to Buffalo Bill's Wild West and Congress of Rough Riders of the World than that of Miss Kate Field, whose lamentable death in the far off Santa Cruz Islands last summer caused a nation to mourn the loss of a most brilliant intellect and exponent of the highest type of American woman-world-wide traveler.

Speaking of the outfit at the time of her stay at the World's Fair in writing to her paper here, she said:

"Chicago is today the center of the United States and will remain so until the close of the World's Fair.

There is more to see and hear than in ordinary brain can digest in a thousand years. The vastness of the fair makes it the part of wisdom to use discretion in selection. When I want instructive entertainment without fatigues, when I want a breath of air from the Rockies, when I want to shake hands with Spanish men who can tell good stories and kind acts, with equal facility, and never try to be anybody but themselves, I take a day off and visit Buffalo Bill's Wild West camp, and no other intelligent visitor would fail to consider fit of all the vast and manifold attractions of Chicago.

The great White City, the most marvelous and most soul-stirring of them all is the Wild West Exposition."

WRITTEN AT RANDOM.

Capt. Eph Baldwin says that there are some uncommonly green people up Dock river, a small tributary of the Tennessee.

A few years ago the captain took a small steamer up the waterway of the little river during high water. He went up as far as the stream, swollen to greater proportions than had ever been known before, was navigable, and drove his whistle at some little village that probably was not near the river, but an island town during low water. The natives were almost uneducated, and when they heard the sloopboat whistle their consternation knew no bounds, and they ran to and fro in the greatest alarm.

Some of them had seen a steamboat before, but a majority of them had not, and when they at length, through the assistance of the former, conjectured fear, they ventured down, in large numbers, to the strange-looking thing with smoking chimneys and a wheel behind it, and instantly inspected it. The captain was treated so royally that he remained to port three days.

On the third day, however, a man boarded the boat in excitement and called for a suit of homespun, and called for the captain.

"I've found out something I'll bet no other man in the world ever found out before," the old man observed to another gentleman who was passing.

The latter turned and saw the old fellow gazing intently into the fountain in the center of the yard. In the middle of the fountain is a miniature water mill, the two wheels of which are turned by the water slowly percolating through two small tubes.

"What is it you've done?" asked the pedestrian, with some little interest.

"I've found out how many drops of water it takes to turn that wheel around once," he replied. "I had to count three times to do it, but I've found out that it takes 725 drops."

The old fellow was evidently right, as it is possible for a person possessing patience to count the falling drops. But he had consumed time enough for the place.

There is one thing a train's passenger does not concur in, and that is "turning over" over the water. As it is the moral effect of "turning over" by electricity, it takes up too much valuable time.

It is told in telegraph circles that practice of spending their time around houses of ill-fame. As a consequence of the inevitable bankruptcy and degeneracy of such associations, he had to be a man you'd not meet out of his "tears," who had for a year past been the pet of a woman at one of the parties of society in the city, and at last had fallen a victim to her viciousness. She had run him to a sudden fit of anger, and while under the influence of liquor through his arm, and perhaps it was due principally to chance rather than to choice that the wound was not worse. As it was, however, the young man was dragged publicly before the courts and involved in the disgraceful imbroglio, while the evidence developed the fact that he had kept up his associations with the woman for a year—and he hardly out of his big as the court took occasion to say. It was no fault of his parents, for they had exerted every means, even warning the proprietress of the house not to admit him, to keep him away. Boys at this age are too big to whipping, at least whipping has gone out of style, they are too young to run at us, without some real sin, and can't be kept in jail. The question is, what is to be done with them?

An elderly gentleman living principally over the iron fence in front of the handsome Langstaff residence on Broadway the other morning.

"I've found out something I'll bet no other man in the world ever found out before," the old man observed to another gentleman who was passing.

The latter turned and saw the old fellow gazing intently into the fountain in the center of the yard. In the middle of the fountain is a miniature water mill, the two wheels of which are turned by the water slowly percolating through two small tubes.

"What is it you've done?" asked the pedestrian, with some little interest.

"I've found out how many drops of water it takes to turn that wheel around once," he replied. "I had to count three times to do it, but I've found out that it takes 725 drops."

The couple went away, but in front of the city hall the old fellow, and the police rushed on to get a look at the bride.

"Ah wish yo' much joy," shouted the female, as she swished off, and with a stifled giggle Alice and her husband saluted the police and left.

One on one side of the pavement, and the other on the opposite, followed the "best man," who had purchased a new tin bucket, to be used in the "growing" in the ensuing festival.

The house of worship is called "the Temple of the 'Dixie,'" and the principal hymn sung to the air of "Dixie,"—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

It is the earnest wish of the police who have long been numbered among the bride's acquaintances, that the growler will always be full to overflowing. This would insure the everlasting happiness of the couple.

DRIFTWOOD

Saved From the Waters, Corralled on the Levee.

Items of Special Interest to River People.

Very little business was being done on the levee this morning.

The Phillips was out for Cairo on this morning.

The Cumberland river packets are due today.

The river still continues to fall here being a fall of one-tenth in the last twelve hours, making the gauge read 1.2 this morning.

Owing to low water, the ferryboat Bettie Owens has discontinued her trips to Owen's landing, opposite the city, until there is a rise. She had considerable trouble in making her trips yesterday.

Capt. Hollingsworth paid the river front a visit yesterday afternoon and says that the harbor here presents a duller appearance than any he has seen yet. Even the little towboat Mary which is usually doing something in the harbor could not be seen at that time.

Capt. Langdon, who has charge of the Innovator, came up from Brooklyn with the boat yesterday afternoon with the expectation of tearing the old water works crib out, but upon sounding the water found there was not sufficient water for them to work. It is thought that it will have to be blasted out.

Work is rapidly progressing on Capt. Jacob's new boat.

Several of the old river men when expressing their views of the present low water, yesterday afternoon, said they had seen the river at a considerable lower stage, but never before had they experienced such quiet times although they all seem to think that when the river comes up river business will be in abundance.

The Moggie Belle was pulled out on the docks this morning for some slight repairs.

The Ashland City was let off the docks yesterday afternoon and left for Danville on time at 10 this morning.

The Broeckeler and Butteroff which were due here early this morning had not put in their appearance at a late hour.

Capt. Alex Woolfolk, pilot on the ferry boat, after being off for several days, owing to sickness, again went to work this morning. The boat is now making four trips to Brooklyn daily.

Miss Susie Boyd is on the sick list.

Mr. Levi Pippen, of Smithland, is in the city.

Mrs. Allen Johnson, nee Dunlap, is never ill at the home of her mother in Paris, Tenn., where she had gone on a visit. Her husband left yesterday to be at her bedside. Her many friends hope for her speedy recovery.

All members of the Trilly Social Club are hereby notified to meet at Mrs. Annie Bell's, 123 South Ninth street, between Broadway and Court, tonight, as there is business of importance to be attended to. Soberly by the president.

Mr. William Noel, a young minister of the Gospel, and brother to Mr. T. D. Hildes, left this morning over the N. C. & St. L. railroad, for Atlanta, Ga., where he will enter the Grammon Theological University. He carries with him the good wishes of a host of friends here.

If he discovered any discrepancy in Mr. West's account at that time he said nothing; but went away and returned again last Saturday, when he claimed to have discovered the accounts in the business here were out of balance. He claims to have discovered errors of about $600 in the last quarter's business which ended July 1; and other errors during this quarter making the entire amount about $700. District Attorney Smith was here also representing the government, and they decided Sunday to depose Mr. West and not to call him as a witness.

Mr. West's account of the conclusion about noon Sunday.

The sureties, who are W. S. Cook, J. W. Griffith, R. E. Giddifit, D. G. Park and B. F. Holson, met and selected O. B. Happy to take charge of the post office until a new man is appointed by the government. The alleged shortage has been settled in full, but was paid under protest by Mr. West and his sureties, as they think the accounts are correct, at least up to the end of last quarter July 1, when he received a quietus, and they will make further investigation of the matter.

Mr. Happy was selected because he was familiar with the duties of the office, and he was the most available man. Mr. West's term expired in April, and he has been merely holding over to await the settlement of the squabble between O. B. Happy and L. W. Key, who are both applicants for the place.

No response.

"Answer!" prompted the Jus-ice.

"What mis' I say?"

"A'ye Yes," he grumbled.

Then it came the hide's cue to answer, which she did between g's.

The couple went away, but in front of the city hall the old fellow, and the police rushed on to get a look at the bride.

"Do you take this woman to be your wedded wife?" asked the Jus-ice.

"No response.
